

sprinkle KINDNESS freebie

Sprinkle Kindness

I show kindness to my friends when I help them tie their shoes.

A CHARACTER BUILDING CRAFTIVITY ON KINDNESS

created by Michelle
Hudgeons

Sprinkle Kindness

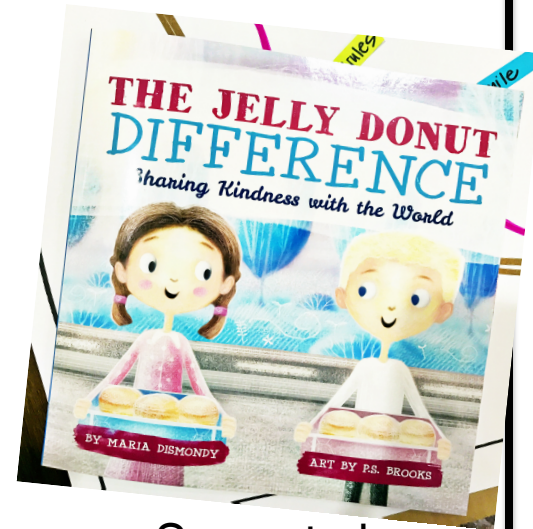

This craftivity is a great follow up activity to the book, The Jelly Donut Difference by Maria Dismondy. This craftivity can be completed without the read aloud. However, I do suggest using it.

Prior to completing the craftivity, encourage your students to think of ways that they can show kindness to their friends at school. Create an anchor chart with your students responses.

Another option is to draw a large donut on an anchor chart. Have your students record on small rectangular sticky notes the different ways that they can show kindness to their friends at school. After they record their acts of kindness, they can stick the sticky notes to the donut to create sprinkles. They can reference to this throughout the school year as a reminder on ways to show kindness.

After completing the anchor chart, your students will record ways to show kindness on their sprinkles (see template) and create their donut. They will then choose from one of their sprinkles (acts of kindness) and elaborate by telling an example of how they can show kindness through that act (see example picture).

Oh,...and you may even want to bring in some delicious donuts to enjoy during or after writing! YUM!!

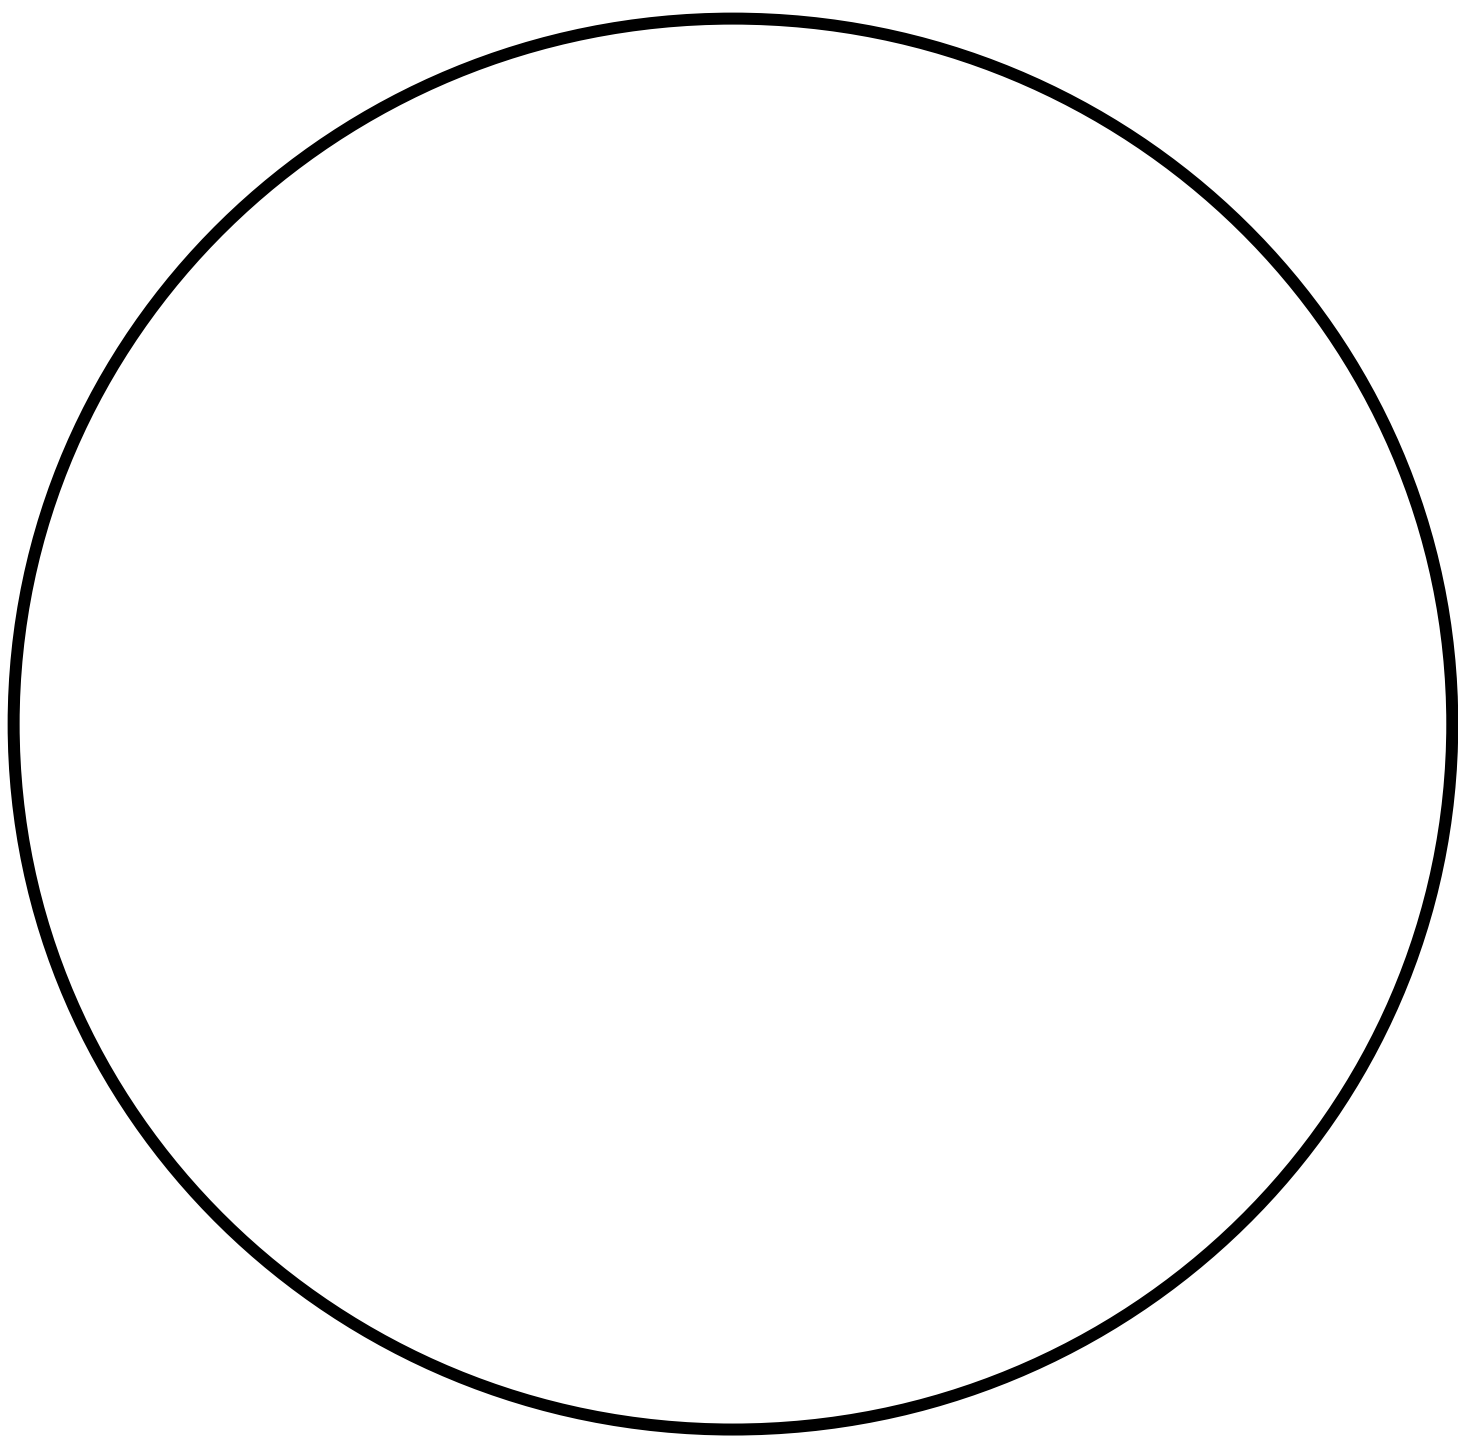

Suggested
Read Aloud:
The Jelly Donut Difference by Maria Dismondy

examples!!

Donut - cream or brown paper

Icing - any color paper
(students will cut out the middle circle)

Sprinkles - any color paper
6 per student

Sprinkle kindness

Sprinkle kindness

Thank you & credits

Thank you for downloading this FREEBIE. I hope you and your students enjoy it!

Find me on social media and blog,
Smitten with First, for additional freebies and ideas!

bit.ly/SmittenwithFirstIG

bit.ly/Smittenwith1stFB

Michelle
Hudgeons

